

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A reactor has a catalytically coated metallic catalyst carrier. The catalyst carrier is constructed as part of an electric circuit and is acted upon by a medium to be catalytically converted. The catalyst carrier is arranged at least in areas in the flow path of a medium to be converted by the catalyst, and this medium can flow through the catalyst carrier.